In Their Own Words...

What better way to illustrate the impact that our programs, services and volunteers make in the lives of those experiencing crises than to share it in their own words...

"Thank You is just too small to say.
I owe my life to AshaKiran."

"...take it from me: a scar does not form on the dying. A scar means 'I survived,' but here is the great news, if anyone you know is the victim of ANY kind of abuse — sexual, emotional, verbal or physical — there is hope. AshaKiran is a ray of light. Scars are beautiful, because they are evidence that you are a survivor."

AshaKiran fills a need in the community that mainstream agencies may not be able to address adequately. Individuals with multicultural backgrounds have additional barriers reaching out for help when faced with crises such as abuse, violence, emotional trauma, loneliness or depression — leading to a dangerous silence.

Some common barriers to seeking help are:

· lack of knowledge about available resources & laws
· cultural & religious diversity from mainstream
· lack of finances and/or official documents for victim/child
· communication & language difficulty

Since 2006 AshaKiran has served individuals experiencing crises such as domestic violence, sexual assault & others and KNOWS what a crisis looks like in multicultural communities.

The awareness about the challenges these individuals face as well as the close collaboration we have done with Police Departments, hospitals, Departments of Human Resources, etc., prompted us to create our programs with the hope that it will bridge the gap between service providers and culturally specific communities and ultimately help those with a need have a voice.

We offer our programs at no cost with classes brought to your location and flexible scheduling to meet your organizational needs.

Please contact us to learn how we can work with the schedule and training needs of your organization.
